

GREAT BRITAIN TO
USE MORE FORCE
IN PALESTINEStern and Productive Action Is Quick Outcome of London
Visit of Sir MacMichael

ELEVEN ARABS KILLED

Two More Battalions of British Troops Rushed To The Holy Land

By Charles A. Smith

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Oct. 11.—(INS)—Plans for partition of Palestine were pushed into the background today as Great Britain embarked upon a program of greater force to crush terrorism in the Holy Land.

Stern and productive action was the quick outcome of the London visit of Sir Harold MacMichael, High Commissioner for Palestine.

Killing eleven Arabs, British troops reoccupied Bethlehem and Beersheba, which had been taken over by the Arabs. Conditions in those two towns, however, have thus far prevented restoration of civil services.

Two more battalions of British troops are being rushed from Egypt to the Holy Land. The High Commissioner will fly back to Jerusalem later this week to take personal charge of the new firm-handed policy of the English.

Troops now in Palestine or on their way there number 21,000, and Malcolm MacDonald, the colonial minister, and Sir Harold are discussing sending a still greater number of men, especially aviators.

Civic Club Members Hear
Number of Riley's Poems

YARDLEY, Oct. 11.—The October business session of Yardley Civic Club was opened Thursday by a silent prayer honoring Mrs. William H. Applegate, a charter member of the club, who recently died. Miss Lillian E. VanArtsdalen gave a few words of tribute, and Mrs. Robert Barbour read a poem in her honor.

A welcome was extended to the honor guests of the afternoon, members of Buckingham Women's Club, of which Mrs. Benjamin Eastburn is president. Eighteen members of the club were in attendance. Mrs. Walter H. Thompson read the minutes.

J. Harry Shoemaker, Trenton, N. J., was the guest speaker of the afternoon, having as his subject, "James Whitcomb Riley," giving a brief history of his life, and reading a number of his well-known poems, "Knee Deep In June," and others.

Mrs. Paul Arata, chairman of the membership committee, welcomed the following new members: Mrs. Eugene Kelly, Mrs. Frank Burke, Mrs. William R. Scammell, Mrs. William Barrett, Mrs. J. Russell Goutant, Mrs. Ralph Bayley, Mrs. Dorothy L. Steinman, Mrs. J. Robert Hershey, Mrs. Bruce Woodhouse and Mrs. Harry Cadwallader.

Miss Lillian VanArtsdalen and Mrs. Clifford C. Nelson favored with a vocal and piano duet. Announcement was made of a lecture in the Makefield Auditorium on October 14, when Miss Mildred Scott Olmstead, executive secretary of Woman's International League for Peace and Freedom, will be the speaker.

Mrs. William J. Keknatel, past president of the Chalfont Community Club, gave a short talk on "The Seashore House at Atlantic City," stressing the fact that there had never been any convalescent children sent from Bucks county.

Tea was served by Mrs. D. Taylor Ivins, Mrs. James R. Groome, Mrs. Dorothy Steinman, Mrs. Louis C. Lee-don, Mrs. Harry Cadwallader and Mrs. Robert Barbour.

At the meeting to be held on October 20th the members of the Newtown New Century Club will be the guests, and Mrs. Catherine Hatrick will give a talk on the boy, and Miss Irene Seipt, Director of Child Research at the Wood School, Langhorne, will also give a talk.

SCHOOL AUDITORIUM
NEEDED AT MORRISVILLEState Rules That Chairs Must Be Fastened For Public
Meetings

MAY INCLUDE IT IN PLANS

MORRISVILLE, Oct. 11.—The State Department has ruled that unless the chairs in the gymnasium are fastened to the floor that room cannot be used by other than pupils of the schools.

Unless the Board of Education includes an auditorium in its plans for the addition to Robert Morris High School building it is likely to find that it will have no place to hold public gatherings of any kind, residents here declare.

It is held that students can be taught how to enter and leave in case of an emergency but those not using the building continually might get confused with moveable seats in case of a fire.

At the time the building was erected the State Board made this ruling but the local directors are said to have been winking at the order. "There is no telling, however, how soon the State may order the practice to cease."

In voting to make application to the General State Authority for funds with which to erect six additional classrooms to the Robert Morris Building and a four-room elementary building at Capitol View, no mention was made of the auditorium, although many of the directors feel that such an addition is essential and can be had at a cost far less than it may ever be had in the future.

Many residents feel that it will be money wisely expended if the auditorium is included, since this will complete the Robert Morris Building as originally planned. Provision has been made for it between the east and west wings of the building.

The addition of the auditorium would also be a big improvement for the school as it will enable the use of the now combination gymnasium-auditorium for gym work entirely. At the present time the school is many times handicapped because it is impossible to hold assemblies or other gatherings when the gymnasium is in use for health work.

Present Shower Gifts To
Former Miss J. Goodbred

NEWPORTVILLE, Oct. 11.—Many beautiful gifts were received at a shower given in honor of Mrs. Joseph Dager, formerly Miss Jean Goodbred, Newportville, at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Nan Jones, Philadelphia.

The following guests attended: Mrs. Harry Dager, Mrs. H. O'Brien, Newportville; Mrs. Bransden, Betty Bransden, Mrs. Lies, Mrs. Mercer, Mrs. Mays, Miss N. Fink, Mrs. Thomas Leitz, Dolores and Beatrice Leitz, Mrs. Anna Cox, Philadelphia.

To Be Federation Speaker

MRS. JOHN L. WHITEHURST

MRS. JOHN L. WHITEHURST
TO ADDRESS WOMEN1st Vice-Pres. of General Federation of Women's Clubs
To Speak At Langhorne

MEETING TO BE OCT. 28

LANGHORNE, Oct. 11.—Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, first vice-president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will be one of the speakers at the Fall meeting of the Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held at the Friends' Meeting House on Friday, October 28th.

Mrs. Whitehurst, whose home is in Baltimore, Md., established an enviable reputation for accomplishment during the past administration of the General Federation, when she served as chairman of the Department of Education, the keynote department.

Speaking before state and district conventions, large clubs, student bodies of universities and colleges, men's clubs and on the radio, Mrs. Whitehurst made 233 addresses in 38 States during her chairmanship.

Her election to the first vice-presidency of the Federation at the Kansas City Triennial Convention was an unmistakable tribute to her leadership and to its recognition by the club women. She has been appointed by Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, president of the Federation, to head the committee in charge of the Golden Jubilee celebration of the General Federation in 1942, and as this will be a nation-wide celebration it is expected that she will visit many States during the coming three years on behalf of what promises to be the greatest renaissance in woman's club interest and participation, which this country has ever experienced.

Mrs. Whitehurst has the distinction of being the only woman ever to be appointed to the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland. Last Spring she was reappointed to this board for a term of nine years by Governor Harry Nice. She is now serving as secretary of the board. She is secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, a past-president of the Maryland Federation, and is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Presbyterian Home for the Aged, and the Board of Trustees of the University Hospital.

Speaking of Mrs. Whitehurst, Governor Nice said: "She is one of the Maryland women who stands out boldly by reason of her deep interest in civic matters. Her great intelligence and unswerving loyalty in the interest of women in this State has caused her to be looked upon as one of the outstanding citizens of Maryland."

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

The Obvious Deduction

Washington, Oct. 10.

WHEN a significant visitor unexpectedly arrives at Hyde Park, or the President himself is revealed in unsuspected intimacy with certain indelicate political figures, or a truculent labor leader who has privately been giving him the rough side of his tongue stamps into the White House "by appointment," or other incidents of a similar nature occur from which interesting deductions might be made, Mr. Roosevelt's favorite press-conference device is to warn his "newspaper friends" that "speculation is dangerous," to caution them against "drawing inferences that may be unfounded."

THIS is a smooth game which the President has played with the press so often that it is surprising there are still reporters sufficiently naive not to see through it. It is a Detours have been established on Route 611, known as the Lackawanna Trail, at the intersection of Dublin pike and at Cross Keys, during the erection of a small bridge about a hundred yards from the Dublin pike intersection.

Newlin F. Hogeland, Davisville, has a yield of 534 bushels of potatoes on a measured acre, according to County Agent William F. Greenawalt.

Mr. Hogeland planted 20 bushels of certified Green Mountain seed and applied to the soil 1600 pounds of 5-8-10 fertilizer. Twelve tons of manure were also used in the growing process.

The potatoes were planted twelve inches in the row, thirty-one inches between rows and three inches deep, County Agent Greenawalt said.

The ground was ploughed in the Spring. It was disced three times and cultivated twice. It was weeded ten times and sprayed 12 times with Bordeaux mixture.

Mr. Hogeland's previous yield was 407.2 bushels per acre.

Ira Thomas, the widely-known Philadelphia Athletics' scout, will address the meeting of the Falls Township P. T. A. in Community Hall, Fallsington, Wednesday night at eight o'clock. The program, which will be in charge of Leighton Batten, will be devoted to sports and will be of special interest to the fathers of the association.

In addition to the talk by Mr. Thomas, there will be a motion picture on sports. Parents of all the children in the township are urged to attend.

At the last meeting of the association it was voted to change the regular meeting nights to the second Wednesday.

Work has been started by the State Highway Department on the removal of the old trolley car rails on East Bridge street, between Pennsylvania avenue and Delmorre avenue, Morrisville, and the repairing that portion of the highway with a tar bound macadam. The improvements are being done as a WPA project and it is estimated that the work will take about six weeks to two months to complete.

Borough authorities have for a number of years been trying to get the State highway to remove these rails and improve the roadway because it is a State highway, but officials of the State held that they could not do anything to improve the road until the rails were removed and the roadway replaced in the same condition it was in when the rails were first laid.

Court Says Too Many
Jurors Ask To Be Excused

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 11.—When the October term of civil and equity court of Bucks county started yesterday, President Judge Hiram H. Keller called attention to the fact that too many jurors are asking to be excused from duty.

"Hereafter, no excuse except a very important one, such as sickness, will be accepted," the Court remarked. "Jury service is just as important as any other kind of service that you may be called upon to render for your country."

Among the miscellaneous business transacted was the appointment of a guardian for James P. Lawler, of Bristol, a patient in a Philadelphia hospital. The Court appointed Dr. James P. Lawler, Bristol physician and deputy coroner of Bucks county, as guardian for his father's estate.

A verdict for $142.23, reached by agreement, was taken in the case of Irland McK. Beckman, Secretary of Banking, receiver of the Cornwells State Bank against Otto Grupp, Jr. The verdict was in favor of the plaintiff.

Trial started before Judge Calvin S. Boyer in the case of Joseph Dawicki against Rednor & Kline, Inc.

In Judge Keller's court, trial started in the case of Fred G. Thomas, surviving partner of Furst and Thomas, a co-partnership against Walter M. Clark and David Kelly, an action in assumption.

The following cases have been continued: Hugh Ramage against Philadelphia Electric Company (trespass); Daniel Martin against Philadelphia Electric Company (trespass); Bradford Green against Archibald Carey (trespass); Frank Flynn against Eugene W. J. Lehman (capias ad respondendum in trespass); Doylestown Agricultural Company, now to the use of Herbert T. Heisel against Victor Dextheimer (assumpsit); Florence N. Downing against David Reid (trespass); Luther A. Harry, Secretary of Banking against Farmers National Bank of Bucks County, executor of Elizabeth Wood, deceased (assumpsit); T. R. REPUBLICAN SPEAKERS TELL AUDIENCE
AT BUCKINGHAM IT IS TIME THAT THE MESS AT HARRISBURG WAS CLEANED UPSamuel S. Lewis, Howard I. James and J. William Ditter Are Speakers at Meeting Sponsored by Bucks County Loyal Republican Club—Over 500 Park Every Available Inch

(By STAFF REPORTER)

BUCKINGHAM, Oct. 11.—Republican men, more than 500 strong, packed every inch of space in the club house of the Bucks County Loyal Republican Club here last evening to listen to spirited and sincere addresses by outstanding G. O. P. candidates. Samuel S. Lewis, Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor, Howard I. James, Republican candidate for the State Senate, and J. William Ditter, Republican Senator from Montgomery County, all predicted that "the voters of Pennsylvania have grown tired of the present wasteful Administration at Harrisburg and this Fall will see a Republican landslide, the end of dictatorial rule, and the return of confidence and industry to Pennsylvania."

The occasion of the meeting was the regular meeting of the Bucks County Loyal Republican Club, an organization that has grown from 17 members less than 18 months ago to the astounding membership of over 1,000 members which was reached last evening. Harris Holmes, Doylestown, president of the club, was the general chairman at the meeting last evening. Members and friends from every section of the county were present.

COUNCIL TRANSACTS
ONLY ROUTINE AFFAIRSHears Committee's Reports
And Request to Hang Sign
In Front of Business Place

ONLY ONE ABSENTEE

With only one absentee, Borough Council last night held a very brief session and transacted only routine business. The only absentee was Councilman Martin J. Fallon, fourth ward.

Police committee reported 12 arrests made during the month. One was discharged, five committed to the county jail, five fined, one turned over to the Bucks county sheriff. Fifty-nine lodgers were given shelter, six incandescent street lights were reported out, three arc lights were reported out and one door was found open after hours.

Councilman DeGroot, fifth ward, moved that police embody in their monthly report the disposition of the cases against motorists tagged for "all-night" parking. The motion was approved.

Request was made for permission to hang a sign in front of 233 Mill street. It was referred to street and highway committee with power to act.

Upon motion of Councilman Clarence W. Winter, first ward, the proper officers of the Borough were authorized to borrow such sums of money as are necessary to meet the current expenses of the borough, until such times as borough revenues are received.

Sewing project reported the following distribution of garments: Borough Council, 842; Public Assistance, 129; Red Cross, 909; Emergency Child Health, 105; St. Francis Industrial School, 480.

King's Theatre Guild To Give Play Friday Night

ANDALUSIA, Oct. 11.—The King's Theatre Guild will open its current season Friday evening at 8.30 with the presentation of the popular courtroom comedy-drama by Ayn Rand, "Night of January 15th," in the Bensalem Township high school auditorium, in Cornwells Heights.

"We feel certain that this play will be numbered among our many successes," states Miss Ethel Hartman, president of the local thespians. "With this presentation we are going to innovate the novelty of selecting the members of the jury from the audience."

For the past week the young Andalusia players have been busy building a new set of scenery to represent the courtroom of the Superior Court of the State of New York.

This season the Guild is inaugurating a plan whereby it will be possible to give their many followers the more recently produced Broadway successes, rather than those of past seasons. The present production was made possible by a special arrangement with the owners of the play.

Among those in the cast will be: Dorothy Settle, Lewis Hartman, Walter Zellinsky, Ernest Orazzi, Eugene Snyder, William Wright, Virginia Murray, Hilda Leversidge, Axel Kleinsorg, Alice Freiter, Norman Foster, Douglas Gittens, Elsie Wright; Miss Lorena Cassile, director.

TIDES AT BRISTOL

High water 3.28 a. m.; 3.57 p. m.
Low water 10.46 a. m.; 11.19 p. m. mendsous Day.

"Ted" Watson, well known figure in Bucks County, introduced the first speaker of the evening, Samuel S. Lewis, Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor, and former Secretary of Highways, State Treasurer, and Auditor General. Mr. Lewis, who hails from York County, was also president of the Interstate Bridge Commission of Pennsylvania and New Jersey for eight years.

Preceding his introduction of Mr. Lewis, Mr. Watson announced a meeting of outstanding interest to every Republican in this section. This is the meeting of the County Committee at the Armory in Doylestown on October 15th at 2.30 p. m. Everyone is invited to this meeting at which time Judge Arthur H. James, GOP candidate for governor, will address the audience.

"Arthur James is going to be your next Governor," Mr. Lewis emphatically informed the meeting last evening. "And he is going into office by a Republican landslide!"

"And when we're elected we promise you that we will get under the whitewash that the present Administration has put on and we will find out who is really guilty of the charges that are being poured forth."

"With Judge James as Governor of Pennsylvania we will have a clean Administration!"

Lewis openly and clearly pointed out many of the fallacies and injustices of the present regime at Harrisburg. He pointed out that in the years 1927 to 1929, under a Republican administration the appropriation for running the government, exclusive of offices, amounted to 147 million dollars and today, under a Democratic regime the same appropriation was over 500 million dollars.

"Where is this money coming from?" Lewis asked. "The answer is obvious—you and every other taxpayer in the Commonwealth is paying the bill."

"The Democrats are not soaking the rich as they claim. They are purposely deceiving you when they make this claim. The poor man is paying the bill."

"One of the greatest crimes that they have committed in Harrisburg is the taxation which is driving industry from Pennsylvania. There is no other explanation for this condition except the high taxes which the Democrats have created."

Speaking of the injurious reciprocal trade agreements Lewis declared that the representatives elected by popular

Convention Delegates Are Named By Baptist Church

The sessions of the Pennsylvania Baptist Convention to be held on October 18th, 19th and 20th, in the First Baptist Church of Warren, will be of great interest to all Baptists.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Weik, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Talbot and the Rev. Howard L. Zepp will attend all the sessions of the convention as delegates from the First Baptist Church of Bristol.

The keynote address, "Loyalty to Christ," by Dr. R. B. Deer, executive secretary, will proclaim the convention theme.

Some of the problems to be discussed will be: "Loyalty to Christ in My Life," by Dr. W. W. Adams, Philadelphia; "Loyalty to Christ in My Home," Mrs. T. T. Richards, Scranton; "Loyalty to Christ in My Church," Dr. G. Pitt Beers, secretary of the American Home Mission Society; "Loyalty to Christ in My Human Relations," Dr. Gordon Poteat of Crozer Theological Seminary; "Loyalty to Christ in Our National Problems," Dr. Mark A. Dawber, secretary of the Home Mission Council; "Loyalty to Christ in My World Responsibility," Dr. W. H. Bowler, secretary of the Council on Finance and Promotion.

The convention will conclude with an address by Dr. A. W. Beaven, president of Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, on "Youth, Christ and a Tremendous Day."

HIGHWAY LIFE INSURANCE

Wyoming gets No. 1 position among the states for its safety program. The award has been made by the National Safety Council. The State reduced by more than 40 per cent its traffic fatalities as the result of a program of highway improvement and public education.

Much credit is given to Dr. Lester C. Hunt, secretary of state and chairman of the Wyoming safety council. He originated what he thought of as a clinic to diagnose highway troubles, and had the cooperation of the state highway patrol, the highway department and the police.

Thousands of reports were collected of highway accidents and causes were studied. The overturned car was found to cause most of the fatalities and an attempt was made to improve highways to straighten sharp curves and remove roadside ditches. Thus the car that momentarily left the road had a better chance of remaining upright.

This is the engineering approach which should be extended to all highway improvement in the country. There are too many dangerous curves and deep ditches and roadside obstructions. Highway money spent for their correction is genuine life insurance.

ODDS FAVOR MURDERER

Statisticians have compiled figures which are disturbing to those who hope to witness one of these bright days a triumph of the cause of law and order.

There are thirty-three murders a day in the United States, the records show, or about 12,000 a year. More than 157,000 murderers are at large at the present time. The chances are three to one that they won't be caught, twelve to one they won't be convicted if caught and one hundred to one they won't be executed if convicted.

The situation is made more interesting by the functioning of a twenty-eight per cent deficient parole system that turns loose an army of desperate criminals each year to supplement the new crop of desperadoes.

These figures do not require exhaustive analysis or discussion to show the extent to which the crime situation has gotten out of hand in the United States.

We should have to have railroads if only to provide the two phoneys a washroom in which to impress one another with big deals.

The democracies marvel at the Hitler sense of timing. The fellow knows to a second when to catch diplomats with their spats down.

Until now, the busy Czechs have been called the Yankees of Middle Europe. The similarity of late has been more to the St. Louis Browns.

Here and There In Bucks County Towns

Finally the State officers agreed that if the borough purchased for the State the rails from the former trolley company, and obtained a release of the trolley right of way, then the highway department would send a force of men here and remove the rails and improve the street. This was to be done early last Summer but then the heavy Summer automobile traffic was reported to be holding up the work.

About forty tons of soy beans, several tons of hay, farm machinery and two automobiles were destroyed when flames of undetermined origin destroyed the barn on the E. T. Mottron property on the Phillips' Mill road, near Solebury.

The place many years ago was owned by Jackson Ely and later Walter Rex became the owner. It was purchased by Mr. Mottron about a year ago. Since that time it was farmed by Robert Kiser, who owned the crops and most of the machinery which were destroyed.

Positive and unanimous endorsement of the Delaware Valley Protective Association's efforts to have the Delaware Division Canal retained as a State park, was made at the annual meeting of the Phillips Mill Community Association.

Tribute was also paid in memory of the late William Lathrop, dean of the Bucks county's artists' colony at New Hope, who was lost in a recent storm off the Atlantic Coast at Montauk Point.

William Francis Taylor, Lumberville, was elected president of the association. Other officers elected include: Dr. Arthur Washburn, Solebury Boys' School, vice-president; Robert Shaw, Solebury Boys' School, secretary; C. A. Sienkiewicz, Doylestown, treasurer.

New directors elected include: Henry Chapin, Jericho Mountain; William G. Thayer, Solebury; Bertha Bates Cole, New Hope, and Harry Leith-Ross, Buckmanville.

The meeting was held in the New Hope art gallery.

Knights of Columbus Plan 'Sports Night'

Treasury, Department of Narcotics, will deliver an address. This will be the first of a series of talks and entertainments to be conducted at the K. of C. Home during the winter months.

The Rev. Bernard Farley, chaplain of the Eastern Penitentiary, will deliver at a later date one of his famous lectures.

In December Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, will bring a party to Bristol to give the local Knights of Columbus, a sports night program.

John Quinn, who was in the World Series games, as an umpire, will be on another program to be given here later. Altogether the Bristol Knights are planning to conduct a series of outstanding sports night programs.

Young Republican Club Hears Two Addresses

Bristol Young Republican Club met last night in the headquarters at 127 Mill street and after transacting the business of the organization listened to two very interesting political addresses. One of the speakers was Paul Barrett and the other was William Begley.

Plans were also discussed for the Young Republican Southeastern Conference which is to be held at the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia on Saturday afternoon, October 29th.

During the afternoon there will be speeches by the Republican candidates and this will be followed by a dinner at six o'clock. Dancing will be the feature of the evening program.

The Bristol Young Republican Club fixed the annual dues last night at $1 per year and membership cards are available from either Joseph Seader, treasurer, or Francis Lefferts, secretary.

"The ELEVEN OF DIAMONDS"

by BAYNARD H. KENDRICK

CHAPTER XXXVI

A flashlight shone—white and cold, caressing the pearl handle of a wicked gun he had seen before—touching the hem of a green silk raincoat. The muzzle was close to the graying hair of the man on top—reflected rays of the flashlight burned the knife in his hand.

"You better reef a mainsail, Commander Fishface," said Millie LaFrance sweetly, "er little Millie will blow off your navy blue bottom with her pretty popgun." Her voice shrilled just before Stan passed out. "I mean get off of him, Dawson, and drop that knife or I'll blow your brains out!"

Afterwards, the night was never more than a bad dream to Stan. The rending screech of sirens—the battering pop of motor-cycles—the splintering of wood as boarded windows fell before an ax—struck on ears gone deaf with pain. A blue ethereal haze supported him as the ambulance sped to Jackson Memorial. In bed he opened dull eyes to the stab of a hypodermic, but the lids dragged heavily, so he closed them again and floated peacefully away.

"There's a man to see you," Miss Leslie announced, her capped head thrust in the door.

Stan beckoned her in. "Is he in a uniform?"

"Yes," She patted a pillow into place. "He's been here twice this morning—and three times yesterday."

"He's come to arrest me for murder. Tell him to go away—that mother and son are doing nicely—anything, but hurry so you can come back and give me my bath."

"Why, you've already had your bath—" Miss Leslie stopped, blushing pinkly.

"There's something so soothing about your hands running up and down my spine." He gave a blissful sigh. "You taught me to be a bathophile."

"I'm sending in the policeman," she stated primly. "And the orderly can bathe you tomorrow. Maybe he can teach you to behave yourself."

"Your hands are soft—but nursing has calloused your heart," Stan told her as she left.

The Captain was speechless for a short while after he came in the room, then he pulled his chair close to the bed. His face lost its firm lines in one of his unpredictable smiles.

"You're a rich man, Mr. Rice—a hundred and thirty-five grand including Farraday's reward. The diamonds were in the mud under the floor!"

"Thirty-five grand, Vince. That's my cut. Thirty-five goes to Millie—and the balance to you and the department where it belongs. If you find Fowler had a family—I'll leave it to you to look after them. Please, Vince," as LeRoy started to protest. "I couldn't have cracked this without the help of the Squad—and you know it. And I wouldn't be alive to collect—without that hell-cat and her nickel-plated gun. Let's don't bring the money up again. I'm glad I'm out with nothing worse than a broken arm—and that Bruce Farraday's going to pull through. I suppose Mumford is deviling you to death for information—"

"He wanted to come with me. I couldn't see you taking one of his cross examinations right now. Why did you take such a chance, Stan?"

"I had to—but I'll come to that. Put it down, Vince, so I won't have to cover this again. Most of it you know—but ask your questions now—I'm talking my last talk about the murder of Fowler and Eckhardt."

LeRoy placed his notebook on the table by the bed. "I'll start with the 'boloney.'"

"Where I should have started—and didn't. First, I'll tell you all I have on Dawson. Up to night before last his record was without a spot. The record of Commander Eric Dawson, U.S.A., Retired, is still spotless—except that Eric Dawson died in China five years ago. The man you have in jail, Vince, is his brother—Ernest Dawson. He's the black sheep of a fine family—forgot—ex-circus performer—murderer—and jewel thief without peer."

"You had nothing to go on, Stan."

"Quite a bit. I didn't know he was impersonating his brother until Millie dug up an old clipping that Ernest Dawson had died in the interior of China, while exploring with his brother. Retired Commander Eric. The story hinted that Ernest had been in trouble. She tipped me that by phone on our return from the trip—night before last. From what I already knew, I guessed that Ernest had assumed the identity of Eric—and had kept it for the past five years."

"What did you know?"

"The perfectly obvious thing, Vince—that Dawson was the only one who could be responsible for the two murders. Eckhardt knew who killed Fowler—and who knocked me off the Four Leaf Clover. He intended to chisel in—and rented an apartment for a month so he could be near his man. The apartment was over Dawson's—but he didn't get much chance to use it. It's simple as that. Dawson had overheard him at Millie's. Act two was murder at the track."

"But Dawson saved your life—"

"An error he's regretted ever since. He thought I was dead when he fished me out. A grandstand play, Vince. The love of it has always been a stumbling block for crooks. Ben Eckhardt made one when he phoned Dawson's apartment—and tried to put the fear of God into Dawson by the omnipotent presence—who heard all and knew all."

"Another thing made me suspicious of Dawson that same afternoon. Neal was talking about the year of his graduation—1900. With thirty years of service up to 1930 and six years of retirement—he'd have to be near sixty today. If he's much over forty I'll pluck out his gray hairs. Even Mrs. Bessinger remarked about his youthfulness."

"The boloney," LeRoy reminded. Stan settled himself more comfortably in bed. He was beginning to feel like a chronic invalid. "Bologna phosphorus is sulphide of barium, made by grinding the Bologna stone. You'll find it in the dictionary—it is used in the preparation of luminous paint—"

"I don't want to find it—I want to hear about it."

"You're about to. The Miles Standish Rice version. Fowler came to Miami on the trail of the diamonds. They were stolen by Dawson. Juan Andres was his accomplice in this country—"

"He's on the twenty-first floor," LeRoy said grimly.

"Juan had contacted Caprilli, and Caprilli had chosen the Bessingers to close the deal. Dawson had no intention of revealing his identity to Caprilli—so he chose the eleven of diamonds as a contact card, as he showed to Juan. Somehow—I don't know how—I found it out and got one for myself. The Bessingers must have been suspicious of him and tipped him off to Juan—anyhow here's what I believe happened—"

"The Bessingers brought him to the club Saturday night. The trap was already set—the Caprilli gang warned to stay away—the one chair placed in the poker room. Juan wrote the warning note, signed 'DB'—telling Fowler to wait in the dark room. As Fowler was reading the note, or as Juan was brushing his coat, he gave him a generous dab of Dawson's specialty—the luminous paint. It had vanished under Fowler's blood when you found him. Juan went downstairs, earlier, and drove his own small car out and back—to make it sound like Fowler had gone."

"And Ben?"

"Dawson must have gotten close to him in the crowd and given him an application. When the lights went out he threw the knife from some distance away—probably underhanded. It can be done with terrific force by someone who knows the trick."

"If Juan was in with him," LeRoy said, shaking his head, "there are still a lot of things I don't get. Who knocked Juan on the head—when you were fired at on the roof?"

"Dawson, of course. He told Juan that was the only way for him to be put in the clear—and the spick fell for it. It was really Juan's dumbness that lost them the game. Juan thought he was being double-crossed when Dawson took the diamonds from the Sunset for safe keeping. Juan started watching every move he made—and saw him hide them in the apartment Ben had rented, after Ben was killed."

"Night before last, Juan took them from the apartment to the old mill, and hooked onto our boat intending to get Dawson out of the picture entirely. The nigger janitor followed him and phoned Millie—"

"And you cooked up the brilliant plan that would have put you out of the picture—if Millie hadn't followed you and saved your neck."

"I had nothing on him, Vince—except suspicion, and a certainty of my own that he was guilty. You can't burn a man with that. I might have waited and investigated his record, and turned him over to the Feds for drawing his brother's retired pay, but unless we jailed him on nothing—he'd have knocked off Juan—"

"A small loss," LeRoy grumbled. "I wanted those diamonds," Stan assured him with a smile. "And I did have fun accepting his story about the smuggling and the non-existence retreat on the keys. Failing to kill me with the aid of Fowler's car—he tried so hard to sell me the idea that he'd been fishing the day before that he stubbed his toe. I accepted his offer to take me there. He probably knew some shack on the keys. We'd have ended there—if Farraday hadn't been shot!"

Stan gnawed at the knuckle of his left hand. "There was always a fair chance that I was on the wrong track. I didn't dare pass it up. He actually had me going, Vince, when we started out on the Swampfire—and on the way home you nearly sold me a bill of goods on Button."

"Nearly!" The Captain rose. "I'm always so near and you're so far. Maybe you know in which pocket he kept that Hispano-Suiza of Fowler's."

"There are twelve garages in back of the apartment house. I think it was in one of those belonging to an unrented apartment. He undoubtedly kept it to search—but didn't find the stuff hidden in the rumble seat." Stan hesitated, and scratched his head. "Do you think that bus could be bought, Vince? I might take a tour this summer. I've never owned a car as fast as that—"

"Anything can be bought," said LeRoy at the door. "Including blonde drivers for men with broken arms. By the way," he added, sheepishly, "the doctor said a mild stimulant wouldn't hurt you—so I've ordered half a case of Scotch to last you out the week." He left, with a wink to Millie, who was waiting outside.

"Close the door," Stan said mysteriously, when she came in the room. "Now look in the bottom of the closet. Under my bathrobe you will find a large box—a very large box. It contains two whole roast chickens with trimmings—smuggled in by that woman whose name is Doris. In a bucket of ice in the box are four bottles of Chateau d'Yquem—smuggled in by her husband."

"Let's celebrate," Millie suggested, hopefully.

"First I have a task to perform," Stan told her. "Afterwards I will join you gladly. The nurse said too much food would make me ill. They have fed me nothing—and I'm getting ill. I intend to demolish an entire chicken, and throw the bones down in my bed. Will you join me, Millie LaFrance?"

"Try and stop me!"

GRAND

"I'll never forget the night I first heard that song!"

The words were wisps of thought in a roomful of conversation. It was Sunday in Hollywood—and the radio offered a program of Irving Berlin hits.

Darryl F. Zanuck caught the words from across the room.

Every song stirs a memory—the melody whispers across the years and again opens the old album of recollection, at the Grand Theatre.

It might have been the first time a girl went to a party. It might have been the song the fellows sang around a summer campfire . . . the song the men sang marching to war . . . the song mother loved best to play . . . dad's one-and-only solo . . . songs which never die.

It has been said of Darryl F. Zanuck that he looks for his motion picture stories on the front pages of the daily newspapers . . . the things that are most immediate in the public mind.

More important, he says, are the things closest to the heart.

And among the 600 songs that Irving Berlin has written, Zanuck knew he could find the melodic milestones within every one's recollection.

BRISTOL

The next attraction at the Bristol Theatre is a motion picture which is absolutely in a class by itself.

It is "Dracula," a sensationally different, weird and startling story of life after death, and the strange human vampires who rise from their graves at night and bring terror to the hours of darkness.

The central character of this hair-raising story is Count Dracula, apparently a polished gentleman, but in reality a blood-thirsty vampire whose horrible attacks reduce his victims to madness or death. At length he centres his attentions on a beautiful young girl, and a famous scientist is brought from a foreign country in an effort to prevent her being forced into the strange Legion of the Undead.

Bela Lugosi and Edward Van Sloan who appeared in the original production of "Dracula," were engaged by Universal to play the roles which they created, and other important parts are enacted by Helen Chandler, David Manners, Dwight Frye, Herbert Buntin, Frances Dade and Charles Gerard. Tod Browning, who achieved fame through his long association with Lon Chaney, directed the picture.

Do not fail to see "Dracula." Every one will soon be talking about this exotic, fantastic drama, which is creating a new milestone in the history of the talking screen.

The engagement ends at the Bristol Theatre.

58 CANDIDATES FOR BENSALEM HOCKEY TEAM REPORT

Large Number Turns Out For The First Week Of Practice

22 SELECTED BY COACH

Hockey Has Been Played Only
One Year at Cornwells
Heights

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 11—Approximately 58 candidates turned out during the first week of practice seeking berths on the Blue and Gray field hockey team here. From that group, Coach Helen Smith had to carefully select the 22 most promising players upon which to build her 1938 combination, which she hopes will complete a much more successful campaign than did the '37 outfit in spite of the fact they could do no better than to hold New Hope to a 0-0 tie in their inaugural tilt last week.

Bensalem has played field hockey only one year and since this is the beginning of their second campaign too much cannot be expected of them. However, the girls feel confident of finishing up among the leaders this season. If their offensive attack, which is much faster and more accurate this year, clicks properly (which it didn't in the New Hope game), then the Owlets may figure on taking quite a few games this season. As far as the defense is concerned, they seemed to be pretty well fixed with Glyndal Applin, Thelma Vandegrift and Edith Stuhltrager as halfbacks, and Dot Cairns and Dot Doyle as fullbacks. The goal tending job will be handled this year by Myrtle Hagen.

On the forward wall Miss Smith has capable girls in Betty Bound at center, Naomi Foster and Josephine Sciolli as inners, and Jane Barkley and Doris Ely at the wing posts. Betty Dougherty and Evelyn Hentschel are replacements at the flank positions, while Eleanor Hughes is pressing the inners for a starting job. At center, Naomi Hughes and Marian Mills will understand for Betty Bound.

In the defensive spots, Miss Smith has other replacements to fill in for the varsity girls in time of need.

Eight regulars from the '37 squad departed from the team this year, leaving many holes for Miss Smith to fill in to round out a respectable team for the present campaign. Among those who left the premises last year include: center, Margaret Hughes; Anetta Smith, a wing; Clara Stenberg and Annie Snyder, halfbacks; Betty Perkins and Caroline Zuvich, fullbacks, and Mabel Ridge, the regular goalie.

BENSALEM JR. HIGH DEFEATS ST. FRANCIS

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 11—George Carter equaled the performance of his older colleague from Bensalem, Joe Cahill, as the Junior High eleven also scored a win yesterday afternoon when they easily downed St. Francis Industrial Junior High team, 20-0, on the latter's field.

Line-up:
Bensalem Jr. High St. Francis Jr. High
Gerges center Dugan
Henderson right guard Monaghan
Brady right tackle Cardamone
Ashton right end Broccellini
Thayer right half Campusio
R. Puma left half Milaney
Reed right half Carines
Carter fullback Ward

Points after touchdown: Carter, 2 (line play).

FALLSINGTON WINS OVER SOUTHAMPTON

SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 11—A very much improved Fallsington High hockey outfit scored a 2-1 decision over the Southampton Canines here yesterday afternoon.

Iris King, center forward, and Jean Carver, right inner, were the pair to push the ball into the nets for the Orange and Black clad girls of Coach Rossiter. Both were counted in the opening half on scrimmages in front of the Canines' net.

Southampton came back with a bit of a rally when their center forward, Betty Johnson, pushed the pill past goalie Ruth Winder, to make it 2-1. This, too, was counted in the same manner as both Fallsington's goals, on a scrimmage in front of the goal.

Fallsington showed a faster offensive attack yesterday than they did in the Newtown game. Their game with Buckingham this week has been moved back to Thursday.

Score by periods:
Fallsington 2 0 0 0-2
Southampton 1 0 0 0-1
Goals: I. King, Carver, R. Johnson.
Time of halves: 20 minutes.

CAHILL PACES J. V. TEAM TO VICTORY; SCORE 19-6

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 11—Joe Cahill, right halfback for Coach John Slaven's Bensalem Junior Varsity gridders, led the way to a 19-6 triumph of the Blue and Gray over Upper Moreland's J. V. outfit on the Owls' field here yesterday afternoon. Cahill opened the Owls' scoring midway in the opening period when, with the ball on his own 20 yard line, fourth down and five yards to go, he dropped back to punt. However, Upper Moreland linemen closed in on him rapidly and he was unable to get the kick off. Sensing this, he decided to run to pick up the five yards for a first down. He gained the necessary five yards but Bensalem didn't get a first down. As a matter of fact they didn't need it. For Cahill ran the full 80 yards behind beautiful blocking to cross into U.M.'s end zone with the first touchdown of the game. The extra point try failed.

Near the close of the first half, Cahill stepped in front of an alien aerial, grabbed it on the 50 yard line, and ran down the sidelines again behind some line interference to score standing up. This time the extra point via a place kick was good and Bensalem led at halftime, 13-0.

In the third period, Henry "Hank" Stachurski plunged over the last white line from the one yard marker to give the Owls the third and final touchdown following a march of 50 yards. When the try for the extra point missed, Bensalem led, 19-6.

By virtue of the same procedure as the Junior Owls scored their last six-point, Upper Moreland broke into the scoring column with Lou Childs going over from the one yard line to climax a 50 yard drive. Their attempt to chalk up the added marker also failed. So the final count read, 19-6, with Bensalem on the long end.

Line-up for Upper Moreland-Bensalem J. V. game:

Bensalem J. V. Upper Moreland J. V.
Steele center White
Cook right guard Thony
Baker right tackle Aldred
Hill right end Childs
Cahill quarterback Lewis
Stackerski right half Yonson

Score by periods:
Bensalem 6 7 6 6-19
Touchdowns: Cahill, 2; Childs, 1.
Point after touchdown: Cahill (place kick).

Substitutions—Bensalem: Ends (Raymond Jones, Tackles (Math. Devine, Choiniski); guards (Wendkos, McAndrews, Clark); center, Turner; back, Killian.
Referee: Morgan; Croydon, Umpire; Lodge, Southampton; Head Linesman; Waldecker, unattached.

Republicans Say It Is Time Harrisburg Mess Cleaned Up

vote from every section of the country should make up the provisions of all such agreements and that the President should not have this power in his hands. "In 1937 there were 17 million bushels of wheat imported into the United States. That is the exact amount that is grown by Pennsylvania farmers. And that is the exact reason why Pennsylvania farmers are receiving next to nothing per bushel for their wheat; they have no protection from the cheap goods that have been imported.

"One of the worst conditions of the present regime is the giving out of highway jobs. You can't get a job on the highway today unless you register Democratic! If you are a Republican the only way you can get a job is to change your politics. Such conditions never existed while I was Secretary of Highways.

"But the road supervisors and the employees as well, are growing tired of this coercion. They are tired of being herded like sheep and this Fall even these men who have to register Democratic to hold their jobs will vote the straight Republican ticket!

"In conclusion allow me to make these statements: When the Democrats say that if the Republicans get in that WPA and relief will stop they are telling a falsehood and deceiving you. WPA and relief will continue so long as there is need of them, but we will not ask their politics if they really need assistance; and we are going to restore confidence in industry so that relief and WPA labor can be rightfully absorbed into private enterprise; and remember this—every candidate on the GOP ticket has tasted of hard work and practical experience—we were not born with silver spoons in our mouths!"

The second speaker of the evening, Howard I. James, Bristol, Republican candidate for State Senator, was introduced by Mr. Watson.

Mr. James praised the high qualifications of "Sam Lewis" for the Lieutenant Governorship and urged the audience, "whether you are Republicans or Democrats it is time to assert yourselves against the Administration whose every step leads further toward a dictatorship and whose every step is taking yet another of your liberties. If you want to continue the liberties that you and your forefathers have always enjoyed in this country then out this group that is stealing your rights and privileges.

"This bunch at Harrisburg today is not sincere, far from it! I remember just a few months ago when Earle and Margiotti visited Bristol and praised each other to the skies. Think for a moment of the names they are calling each other today!

"In conclusion let me urge you to send every Republican possible to the Capitol so that Judge James can the better clean up this mess. Thomas B. Stockham and Wilson L. Yeakel, candidates for re-election to the State Assembly, are well qualified to aid him do this job, so see that they are returned."

District Attorney Edward Blester was called upon to introduce the last speaker of the evening, the Honorable J. William Ditter, from Montgomery County.

Ditter praised the phenomenal growth of the Club from 17 members less than a year and a half ago to more than 1000 members at present. "The growth of this club is indicative of the change of attitude in every part of the State," he asserted. The voters of Pennsylvania are tired of the dictatorial Administration. There is today a revival of Americanism!"

"And the Republicans, just as Sam Lewis told you, are going to win this election!"

Further attacking the bad policy of the reciprocal trade relations which now exist between this country and foreign powers Ditter said, "There are now 511 products which are grown or made in Pennsylvania which are being imported. And yet they wonder why business is bad. And these imported articles are coming in at prices that the American standard of living makes impossible to meet.

"Enough food has been imported into this State to feed half the population and yet the Department of Agriculture tells us how much we should grow and what we should not grow and how to put potatoes in bags and other equally foolish things.

"There is no wonder that the farmers of Pennsylvania are in revolt against the New Deal. The New Deal has made their burdens unbearable and unlivable.

"The Democrats have lost sight of two of the cardinal principles that have made America what it always has been—Talent and the Ambition to Work.

"And it is these two qualities that will put Arthur James, in the Governor's seat and it is these same two qualities that will enable Arthur James to clean up the present mess and give Pennsylvanians a clean and decent Administration.

"The Hymn of Hate which the Democrats have pushed and sung must cease. Nothing but war and hate can come from putting one class and one group against another. Rather all must work together.

"Honesty is the best and only policy that will pull Pennsylvania out of the mud, and this will happen when Judge James is elected.

Far and away above the personalities of the candidates in this campaign is the principle of government that is at stake. Either the people are returned to power and Pennsylvania is returned to Pennsylvanians or else we move on toward a dictatorship.

"The Republican party pledges itself to bring Pennsylvania back to Pennsylvania; it pledges a restoration of private industry; it pledges a restoration of confidence and courage to again open the doors of industry; and it pledges to clean up the mess that now exists in Harrisburg. And we pledge ourselves to Honesty in Government and Honesty in Administration."

In his closing plea Ditter urged that there may come into the consciousness of every person the conviction that it is up to us to stop this mad Administration and that the voters of Pennsylvania may again redeem the State."

OLDTIMERS SOUGHT

Courier classified ads are sure to bring results.

Accelerate Re-Armament

London, Oct. 11—With a sweeping re-organization program for the territorial armies akin to the National Guard in the United States—Great Britain today speedily turned to the task of accelerating its re-armament.

Not only will the territorial army be enlarged by four divisions, but production of weapons and mechanical equipment for it will be hastened.

Find Girl's Body

Larchmont, N. Y., Oct. 11—Mutilated by a sharp instrument swung with savage fury, the body of a pretty 17-year-old girl was found sprawled in an alley in the rear of the Larchmont Theatre today.

Police Chief W. J. Keresy said he believed the girl's slayer had used an axe.

Detectives began examinations of the victim's clothing, seeking store labels through which her identity might be traced.

Tremendous Victory Reported

Shanghai, Oct. 11—Japanese official silence today tended to bear out Chinese reports of a tremendous victory at Tahan on the Nanking railroad.

Chinese newspapers continued to place the Japanese losses at between 10,000 and 20,000 killed or wounded.

Two whole brigades were practically wiped out when they were surrounded by Chinese forces, military headquarters at Hankow asserted.

FORST-WAITE

FALLSINGTON, Oct. 11—Miss Mary Louise Waite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Choyle Waite, of near Fallsington, and Judson Forst, son of Mr. Elizabeth Forst, Three Bridges, were married Saturday in the Prospect Presbyterian Church, Trenton, N. J.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for members of the bridal party and the immediate families at Fischer's Tea Room on the River Road. Upon their return from a motor trip through the West, the couple will reside at Three Bridges.

something up his sleeve which would make the 2 and 2 they saw before them come to 5 or 3 instead of the 4 which it should. And this still holds true, despite the fact that in every case where Mr. Roosevelt thus has tried to prevent the obvious inference from being drawn, the obvious inference has turned out to be wholly true.

FOR EXAMPLE, there was the visit last year to Hyde Park just ahead of the New York Mayoralty primaries of two conspicuous Tammany leaders. That fact, coupled with the position of these leaders and their close relations with Mr. Farley, made it perfectly clear that the White House was not favorable to the LaGuardia candidacy. Yet, by warning against "speculation," the President was able to minimize the logical deduction and go through the campaign clear up to the time when the LaGuardia success was assured without showing his hand. It didn't for a minute fool Mr. LaGuardia, who quickly made the "obvious deduction," but it did enable the President to keep under cover during the fight and avoid a loss of prestige, except with those who knew the facts. The most recent Roosevelt warning to the reporters that it would be "unwise" to make the obvious deduction came after the Saturday visit to Hyde Park of Doctor and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter.

DR. FRANKFURTER's name is the most conspicuously mentioned in connection with the Supreme Court vacancy due to the death of Justice Cardozo. He is very close to the President and, except on the court-packing bill, has been his most influential counselor and friend. He is the candidate of the little Corcoran-Cohen group. Lawyers generally would welcome his appointment, because it would relieve their fear of another man of the Hugo Black type, it being quite well known that there are several such actively aspiring. He would be acceptable to the Senate, which would vastly prefer him to such an individual as the blatant Mr. Minton, of Indiana. The only hint of opposition to Dr. Frankfurter has come from the circulation of a curious, vague story about certain anonymous Jews being worried lest the Frankfurter appointment accentuate feeling against their race in the country generally.

NO FAIR-MINDED person thinks Mr. Roosevelt would be quite so unworthy as to refrain from naming Dr. Frankfurter because of any such absurd protest. No sensible person thinks Dr. Frankfurter would be either silly or timid enough to decline the appointment because of any such unfounded apprehension. The only possible inference from the Frankfurter visit is that he is slated for the Supreme Bench. Obviously, Mr. Roosevelt is going to appoint him, but just as obviously he is not going to do it until after the November elections. That is why he warned the correspondents against "speculation," kept them from making the obvious deductions. The only possibility of a slip-up lies in the strong distaste of Mr. Roosevelt for having obvious deductions made before he is ready for them—in his itch to show up journalistic forecasters—particularly independent ones—who "speculate" without his permission. It is possible that this desire may be so strong as to lead him to sidetrack Dr. Frankfurter at the last minute. It isn't likely, but it is possible.

RED ROLFE STEALS AS YANKS STEAL THE SERIES

Red Rolfe, third baseman of the New York Yankees, is shown sliding safely to second after a steal early in the final game of the World Series between the Yanks and the Chicago Cubs at Yankee Stadium, New York. Rolfe died on third, however, because Henrich grounded out and DiMaggio fanned.
